

HTML Quick Reference¹

Framework

```
<html>
  <head>
    <title> Will appear in IE7 tabs & in Title Bar. </title>
  </head>
  <body>
    <!-- Body content will appear on your web page. -->
    <h1> Main heading. </h1>
     Paragraph
      <ul> Unbulleted List.
        <li> First item in list. </li>
        <li> Second item in list. </li>
      </ul>

     linkName
     anchorName
    &#169; Copyright Symbol (©)2
  </body>
</html>
```

Tags: <http://www.w3schools.com/tags/default.asp>

Special Characters: <http://www.uni-passau.de/~ramschi/iso8859-1.html>

¹ From Creating Web Pages for Dummies, Bud Smith and Arthur Bebak, IDG Books Worldwide, Foster City, 1996. Departures:

- While tags in book are shown in uppercase, tags here are shown in lowercase because W3C standards recommend it, and XHTML demands it.
- For the same reason, end tags left out of the book are included here.

² Complete list of special characters: <http://www.uni-passau.de/~ramschi/iso8859-1.html>.